Narodowy Bank Polski, NBP
Visiting Researcher Program*Call for applications

The Economic Institute of Narodowy Bank Polski (NBP, central bank of Poland) invites applications for the fourth edition of the Visiting Researcher Program (VRP), which will last from March to November 2017. The VRP is aimed to enhance cooperation of the NBP staff with both senior and young economists.

NBP is seeking applicants whose research profile is related to central banking issues, such as monetary and macroprudential policy, international economics or forecasting. Visiting Researchers are expected to conduct their research at the headquarters of the NBP for a period between one and two weeks, present their research project at the internal seminar and submit the results to the NBP Working Paper series. Joint projects with NBP staff are highly appreciated.

The Participants of the VRP will be offered a stimulating working environment. They will have the opportunity to participate in internal seminars and present the results of their research to a broader audience. Moreover, the NBP is providing an honorarium as well as the reimbursement of economy class travel and accommodation costs.

Applications (in English) should include:

- a concise description of the VRP project (max 1500 words)
- preferred date and duration of stay
- curriculum vitae
- publication record and a list of ongoing projects

Applications for the VRP should be e-mailed to visitor.program@nbp.pl by January 15, 2017. Please include "VRP 2017" in the subject line.

Applicants will be notified by February 28, 2017.
